

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

AIMS AND SCOPE OF JOURNAL

The International Journal of Food Design (IJFD) is the first academic journal entirely dedicated to food design research and practice. This journal is a platform for researchers and practitioners operating in the various disciplines that contribute to the understanding of food design: design applied to food and eating, or food and eating investigated from a design perspective.

The International Journal of Food Design is interested in pushing the boundaries of research that connects aspects from culinary arts, hospitality, food science, food culture, food marketing, eating behaviour and any other food discipline, with aspects from design theory, design education, industrial design, design history and any other design discipline. The journal welcomes contributions on, but is not limited to, topics such as food product design, food packaging, design for food, design with food, interior design, food events, sensory design, food system design, food service/management, food design history, food design theory and food design education.

The International Journal of Food Design is interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary: we welcome articles relating to more than one area of knowledge, articles that create bridges between disciplines, and articles that result from research teams made of scientists with unique expertise all contributing to the same research endeavour. The journal welcomes research articles, literature reviews, case studies, book reviews and interviews.

DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION

Intellect is committed to creating a diverse and inclusive space for the benefit of its authors, editors, staff and the wider academic community. TYPES AND LENGTH OF ARTICLES

RESEARCH PAPERS: EMPIRICAL RESEARCH PAPER OR LITERATURE REVIEW

A research paper is an academic work that either describes original empirical work or reviews already published work. An empirical research article reports and analyses data based on measurement, observation, a survey, interviews or experiment with the goal of generating knowledge. The research may use quantitative or qualitative methods. A research paper typically consists of an Introduction, Method, Results and Discussion section. A literature review documents the state of the art with respect to a subject. A literature review surveys the literature in an area of study, it summarizes this information, it presents the material in an organized way and it critically analyses the information by showing limitations, identifying knowledge gaps, describing areas of controversy and formulating avenues for further research. Research papers must generally not exceed 8000 words including notes, references, author biography, keywords and abstract.

CASE STUDIES AND ESSAYS

A case study describes a specific situation (a product, design, target group or problem) in detail, and tries to identify key issues (what happened and why), relate it to relevant theoretical concepts and, if possible, recommend possible courses of action. Although a case study describes a specific situation, it can provide insights that are relevant for other situations as well, especially because it goes into depth more than studies where multiple situations are compared. An essay is an analytic, interpretative, or critical piece of writing, usually dealing with its subject from a personal point of view. It involves reflections on a specific topic, either theoretical or methodological in nature. Case studies and essays must not exceed 4000 words including notes, references, author biography, keywords and abstract.

BOOK REVIEWS AND INTERVIEWS

A book review includes a thorough description, critical analysis and evaluation of the quality, meaning and significance of a book, as well as its relevance for the field of food design, from a theoretical and/or an applied point of view (when applicable). An interview covers the personal viewpoints of a person whose field of work (research or design practice) is highly interesting to the area of food design. Book reviews or interviews generally range from 1000–2000 words. The editors usually take the initiative for these. Before submitting a book review or interview, please consult the reviews editor or principal editor, respectively.

SUBMISSION PROCEDURES

Because IJFD uses a double blind review procedure, the contributor should submit two separate files containing an anonymous version of the manuscript containing no author information, and a separate supporting document containing all author details. Strict anonymity is accorded to both authors and reviewers.

The article file should include:

- Article title.
- No contributor names.
- Abstract of 200 words; this will go on to the Intellect website.
- Keywords – six to eight words, or two-word phrases.
- The complete article text, including Figures and Tables.
- Reference list. References to the author's own work may be replaced by anonymous references, such as (Author 2012) to ensure double blind reviewing.
- Funder name and grant number (if applicable).

The separate supporting document submitted with the article should include:

- Article title.
- Contributor name.
- Contributor ORCID identifier. This must be supplied in the following format: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-1825-0097>. If you do not yet have an ORCID identifier, please register here: <https://orcid.org/register>.
- Contributor addresses – the submitted material should include details of the full institutional postal address and a single e-mail address for the contributor for publication.
- Contributor biography – contributors should include a short biography of around 100 words, specifying their work field, interests and affiliations.
- Acknowledgements.

Please use the following file-naming conventions when submitting your articles:

- The article file submitted by Smith: IJFD art Smith.doc
- The supporting document file submitted by Smith: IJFD sd Smith.doc

MANUSCRIPT REQUIREMENTS

Articles submitted to the International Journal of Food Design must not have been previously published in English, should be original and not under consideration by any other publication. If the submission is based on a conference paper, the Conference Paper Requirements (see below) must be met. Previous publication in another language should also be disclosed. Such statements, along with explanations for exceptions to the above rules, should be included in the supporting document submitted with your article. Contributions should be submitted electronically in Microsoft Word format either through the Intellect website or as an email attachment to the Principal Editor.

In your initial submission all images should be embedded into the text itself and have their own caption. After your article has been accepted, all images should be supplied independently of the article at a minimum of 300 dpi. The files should be clearly labelled as Figure 1, Figure 2, etc. and an indication should be given as to where they should be placed in the text. Please be aware that reproduction will normally be in black-and-white.

CONFERENCE PAPER REQUIREMENTS

If your article is partly based on a conference paper, which may be published elsewhere, it is important that the submitted article has been substantially revised, expanded and rewritten, so that it is significantly different from the conference paper or presentation on which it is based. The article must be sufficiently different to make it a new, original work. This is unlikely to be the case if less than 50 per cent of the article is clearly new. This is a matter of judgment and will be based on a comparison of the submitted article with the original conference paper. Hence, the author should supply the original conference paper with the expanded article for the purpose of comparison. Please send this by email to the editor. All such articles will be subject to the same peer review process as any other submitted article.

Please include the statement 'This article is a revised and expanded version of a paper entitled [title] presented at [name, location and date of conference]' in the supporting document when you submit your article. If the original conference paper on which the extended paper is based has been published elsewhere, or the copyright has been assigned to the conference organizers or another party, authors should ensure that they have cleared any necessary permissions with the copyright owners in order to publish the work open access within the journal. Articles will not be accepted, post-review, for publication unless such written permissions have been provided along with author open access publishing agreements.

COPYRIGHT

All submissions must include a signed Open Access publishing agreement giving us your permission to publish your paper should it be accepted by our peer review panel. Accepted articles will be published Open Access under a Creative Commons licence. Accepted contributors will retain copyright and publishing rights without restriction.

PERMISSIONS/LIABILITY

Copyright clearance for non-original material included in the manuscript (e.g., images) should be indicated by the contributor and is always the responsibility of the contributor. The contributor publishing agreement, which also details which version of a contributor's own article remains their copyright, should be completed and sent to the editors to accompany every submission.

ETHICAL STATEMENT

If your work involves live subjects (human or animal) you must provide an appropriate ethical statement when submitting your paper. The most suitable location for this is usually the methods section. However, to preserve anonymity please do not add the ethical statement to the manuscript, instead please include it in the supporting document.

Contributors should include the following points in the ethical statement (if applicable):

- The name of the institutional or national research ethics committee that approved the research and the approval number given. If the research received a waiver of approval or did not require approval please explain why.
- For investigations involving animal experimentation you should state which animal care and use guidelines were followed.
- For investigations involving human participants you should state that all participants (or their parent or legal guardian in the case of children under 16) gave written informed consent to participate in the study and publish the results.

FIGURES AND TABLES

We welcome images illustrating an article. All images require a resolution of at least 300 dpi. Please insert images in the text and also provide them as separate image files (.jpg, .tiff, .png).

Tables should be embedded in the Word document if created there. If not, please treat them as images.

The image or table should always be accompanied by a suitable caption. Please insert the captions within the document where you would like the image or table to appear. The following is the agreed style for captions:

If the Figure has already been published elsewhere, the contributor should obtain permission to reproduce the Figure from the original copyright holders. In addition, the contributor should refer to the original source in an appropriate manner in the Figure caption. Copyright clearance is always the responsibility of the contributor.

ALTERNATIVE TEXT

As part of Intellect's commitment to fairness and accessibility, we ask our authors to provide descriptive text alternatives for all images, graphs, figures, etc. in your work. Useful guidelines can be found at the Diagram Center website and the Describing Visual Resources website. All Intellect journal content published from August 2023 onwards includes alternative text for all visual and audio material.

PRESENTATION/HOUSE STYLE

All articles should be written in Word. The font should be Times New Roman, 12 point. The title of your article should be in bold at the beginning of the file, but not enclosed in quote marks. Bold is also used for headings and subheadings (which should also be in Times New Roman, 12 point) in the article. Italics may be used (sparingly) to indicate key concepts.

The journal follows standard British English, but use 'ize' endings instead of 'ise'.

NOTES

In general, we discourage the use of extensive notes – if something is worth saying, it is worth saying in the text itself. A note will divert the reader's attention away from your argument. If a note is necessary, please use Word's note-making facility, and ensure that these are endnotes, not footnotes. Place note calls outside the punctuation, after the comma, full stop, colon etc. The note call must be in superscripted Arabic (1, 2, 3).

OPINION

The views expressed in IJFD are those of the contributors, and do not necessarily coincide with those of the Editors or the Editorial or Advisory Boards.

QUOTATIONS

Intellect's style for quotations embedded into a paragraph is single quote marks, with double quote marks for a second quotation contained within the first. All long quotations (i.e. over 40 words long) should be 'displayed' – i.e. set into a separate indented paragraph with an additional one-line space above and below, and without quote marks at the beginning or end.

All omissions in a quotation are indicated thus: [...] Note that there are no spaces between the suspension points.

When italics are used for emphasis within quotations, please ensure that you indicate whether the emphasis is from the original text or whether you are adding it to make a point.

REFEREES

IJFD is a refereed journal. Strict anonymity is accorded to both contributors and referees.

REFERENCES

All references in the text should be according to the Harvard system, e.g. (Bordwell 1989: 9).

Please note in particular:

- 'Anon.' for items for which you do not have an author (because all items must be referenced with an author within the text)
- A blank line is entered between references
- Year date of publication in brackets
- Commas, not full stops, between parts of each reference
- Absence of 'in' after the title of a chapter if the reference relates to an article in a journal or newspaper.
- Name of translator of a book within brackets after title and preceded by 'trans.', not 'transl.' or 'translated by'.
- Absence of 'no.' for the journal number, a colon between journal volume and number.
- 'pp.' before page extents.

The following samples indicate conventions for the most common types of reference:

PERSONAL COMMUNICATIONS

Unless an informal conversation, interviews can be cited in text and included in the references. In the references, the name of interviewer/interviewee, type of communication, location, day and month should be included [if available].

- Björgevinnson, E. and Høg Hansen, A. (2009), telephone interview, 23 January.
- Branson, R. and Doe, J. (2014), in person interview, Birmingham City University, 4 July.

WEBSITE REFERENCES

Website references are similar to other references.

There is no need to decipher any place of publication or a specific publisher, but the reference must have an author, and the author must be referenced Harvard-style within the text. Unlike paper references, however, web pages can change, so there needs to be a date of access as well as the full web reference. Website or blog titles should be in roman font. In the list of references at the end of your article, the item should read something like this:

- Kermode, M. (2017), 'Audience appreciation', Kermode Uncut, 17 November, <http://www.bbc.co.uk/blogs/markkermode/entries/61bec71c-916d-4a13-a782-79c3afb3c2b9>. Accessed 20 November 2017.

TRANSLATIONS

If readers are unlikely to understand the title of a non-English-language work in your text (and references), the title in the original language may be accompanied by an English translation by the author, especially if its sense is not implied by the surrounding text. This applies to all types of work (journal article, book, film etc.).

Unofficial translations (e.g. those by the author) should be placed in quotation marks with parentheses, in roman type with an initial capital on the first word of title and subtitle (see Gliesmann in References). After the first mention in text, the original title should be used alone.

The official titles of published translations are set in italics inside parentheses (see Zhang in References). After the first mention in text, the English title should be used alone.

The guidance on this page is by no means comprehensive: it must be read in conjunction with the Intellect Style Guide. The Intellect Style Guide is obtainable from <https://www.intellectbooks.com/journal-editors-and-contributors>, or on request from the editor of this journal.
